- Timeliness: Grievances and disputes will be addressed promptly, with efforts made to resolve them at the earliest opportunity.
- Non-Retaliation: Retaliation against employees who raise grievances or participate in the dispute resolution process is strictly prohibited and will result in disciplinary action.

Procedures

Informal Resolution

Employees are encouraged to resolve grievances or disputes informally whenever possible by discussing the issue directly with the person(s) involved or seeking assistance from their immediate supervisor or HR department.

Formal Grievance Procedure

If the grievance cannot be resolved informally, the following formal procedure should be followed:

The employee should submit a written grievance to their immediate supervisor or the HR department outlining the nature of the grievance, relevant details, and desired outcome.

The supervisor or HR department will investigate the grievance, which may involve gathering additional information and interviewing relevant parties.

A meeting will be arranged between the employee and the supervisor or HR representative to discuss the grievance and explore potential resolutions.

Following the meeting, the supervisor or HR department will communicate the outcome of the investigation and any actions to be taken to address the grievance in writing to the employee.

If the employee is dissatisfied with the outcome, they may escalate the grievance to a higher level of management or an independent mediator for further review.

Dispute Resolution

Disputes between employees or involving other stakeholders will be handled according to the following procedure:

Parties involved in the dispute should attempt to resolve the issue through discussion and negotiation.

If resolution cannot be achieved informally, the parties may request mediation, facilitated by a neutral third party, to assist in reaching a mutually acceptable agreement.

If mediation is unsuccessful, the dispute may be escalated to arbitration or legal action as a last resort.

Review and Amendment

This policy will be reviewed periodically to ensure its effectiveness and compliance with relevant legislation. Amendments may be made as necessary with input from relevant stakeholders.

Compliance

All employees, contractors, and stakeholders are expected to comply with this policy. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment or contract.
